TYPES OF MEMBERSHIP

Full Member

A full member is accepted into membership on the basis of being able to make a knowledgeable and active contribution to the Group. He/she is eligible to attend Group meetings and activities; and will be expected to be a regular attendee. Membership is granted to individuals, not companies or organisations. There is usually a maximum of two members from each company or organisation.

A full member is admitted to the Group on an initial 12 months probationary period in order to establish their bona fides. During that time, although he/she is allowed to attend meetings and contribute to discussions, there is no involvement in voting on any decision affecting the Group. At the end of a probation period the Executive Committee will decide whether to convert the probationary member to full membership, extend the probation period or to discontinue probationary membership in which latter alternative a transfer to associate membership may be offered.

Associate Member

Subject to the approval of the Group, associate membership is available upon request to an applicant who expresses an interest in the general aspects of pedestrian slipping. There is no limit to the number of associate members within a company or organisation. He/she will receive copies of minutes of all Group meetings and papers distributed at those meetings.

An associate member will be allowed to attend one designated meeting per year (other than the AGM) but will not be allowed to vote.
